

CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSION

After examining the analysis of Elizabeth Klehfoth's Novel All These Beautiful Strangers, which is the subject of Margot Whittaker's character which is a reflection of the concept of revenge and love, several things can be summarized as follows:

Margot Whittaker found his true love. He loved Alistair Calloway very much. He found proof of his love for him. He was interested because he was different from other men. He likes everything he has now. The thing that made him happy was that Alistair became his fiancée, and had given his family's ring to Margot. happiness doesn't last long. It began when Margot began to doubt Alistair's love. At first, Alistair looked ordinary on Margot. Until one day at a party, Alistair's brother Teddy introduced him to Grace. At that time Alistair was normal to Grace because she thought Grace was only Teddy's ex-boyfriend and didn't expect him to love Grace. don't talk to Margot about the woman he loves. Alistair began talking about Grace Fairchild to Margot Whittaker. Alistair wanted to cancel his engagement with Margot Whittaker because he only loved Grace Fairchild and would marry Grace. Margot confirmed Alistair's request to cancel his engagement. Margot saves his hatred for Grace and tries to destroy it slowly. He couldn't do anything to keep Alistair with him. After Alistair claimed to have married Grace, Margot still had an engagement with Alistair but in his heart he hated Grace.

Margot Whittaker loved Alistair Calloway very much. After Alistair married Grace, Grace mysteriously disappeared. The police stated that Grace had escaped Alistair and her daughter. Alistair quietly kept trying to find and reveal where his wife, Grace Fairchild was. Initially, Alistair did not suspect Margot, he thought this had nothing to do with his past and his former fiancée Margot. Initially, there was little evidence to show Margot's crime. Until one day when Charlie was at Margot's house to play with his friend Dalton, who was a child from Margot. Charlie found a suitcase like Grace's in the basement of the Margot house. Charlie told this to his father Alistair. Finally, Alistair found concrete evidence. When Margot arrived at Alistair's house, there were already many people in the dining room. All eyes in the room were fixed on Margot. Margot felt threatened and fled. Alistair pulled Margot's hand when Margot tried to get out of the room and told Charlie, his daughter to call the police. Margot was angry at Alistair.

The case of Grace's disappearance began to be investigated again. He knew that Grace's disappearance had a relationship with Margot, because the night before Grace disappeared, Charlie saw Grace and Margot sitting on the edge of Lake Langely. After that night Grace was never seen again. Grace Calloway died because Margot Whittaker killed him. In the end, Grace's body was found in the kitchen garden of Margot's house and also the bones on the ground. In the end, Margot was convicted of first-degree murder and sentenced to life imprisonment without the possibility of parole.

The moral value is if there is someone who loves us, we must believe. Not everyone can show their love. Try to be honest with yourself and those who love you. From Grace Fairchild, we can learn about family and faith. We must give great sympathy, even to people who have treated us badly. If there is someone who makes us disappointed, don't hate it. As Grace Fairchild showed us, she is still good, even if Margot Whittaker hates him, Alistair Calloway does not tell him about his relationship with his ex-fiancé. He has enthusiasm for everyone, is humble, careful, and polite.

Be positive for God's face. In the end, God will show the best for us and we must thank God. Without Him, we are nothing in this world.
