

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

After analyzing the movie, the author conclude that intrinsic approach can be used to analyze "Moana". The author apply showing and telling method to know the characterization of the characters. The characters that the author analyze of Moana as the main character that relate into the theme of the research. Later, by using the concept of plot, the author find the plot of the moviel through exposition to resolution. The last, by using five functions setting.

Then the author conclude that the extrinsic approaches can be used to analyze the movie. The author used James Marcis's identity statuses theory to reveal the character of Moana. The author use the concept of the identity achievement, to explain the impact of moana's character. In development of committed to values beliefs and Goal after exploration related with Moana's Character as characterization, setting and plot.

The author elaborated between the intrinsic and extrinsic approaches to prove the research theme that is the life of Moana's character as a result of one's past mistakes that hurt many people.

Moana is a daughter of the chief of her tribe, Coming from a long line of navigators she sets off for a fabled island with her hero, the demi God Maui. Along the way, Moana fulfills the ancient quest of her ancestors and discovers the one thing she always sought her own identity. Along the voyage they battle the treacherous ocean and all which it hides, all the while learning what the power love between friends can accomplish. An adventurous teenager sails out on a daring mission to save her people. During her journey, Moana meets the once-mighty demigod Maui, who guides her in her quest to become a master way-finder. Together they sail across the open ocean on an action-packed voyage, encountering enormous monsters and impossible odds.

The moral message we can take is not to do bad things that can harm others, and always be grateful for what we have. Such as the Maui character who steals and harms everyone, wreaks havoc on both himself and others. The moral message that Moana describes is a trait that is not easy to despair and has a commitment that is useful for both yourself and others. No matter how trials and problems we must have a way out if we continue to try and be patient and learn. To conclude, by understanding the characterization and psychology on the research, the readers can easily see the theme of the movie.

