

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

After analyzing this novel the writer can conclude that the intrinsic approach can be used to analyze this novel. The writer applies showing and telling methods to know the characterizations of some characters. The characters that the writer analyzes are Kateryn Parr, King Henry and Thomas Seymour. Then by using the concept of setting, especially the five functions of setting, the writer knows the setting of this novel. Also by using the concept of plot it can be known the plot of this novel from exposition until resolution.

The writer also concludes that the extrinsic approach can be used to analyze this novel. The writer uses the concept of triangular love to explain about Kateryn Parr's relationship toward King Henry and Thomas Seymour. The characterizations, setting and plot of this novel support the concepts of triangular love. The writer also elaborates between the intrinsic and extrinsic analysis. It proves that the theme of this novel is the triangular love theory through Kateryn Parr character.

It is explained that Kateryn's love toward Thomas Seymour is stronger than her love toward King Henry. Kateryn is trying to love King Henry because he is her husband. She has to be a good wife and queen at the same time. At the time, she cannot forget Thomas Seymour after King Henry proposed to her. This makes her confused with her feeling. She sure has passion and intimacy to Thomas. However, the decision/commitment is absence. Therefore, the decision/commitment controls whom she ends up with.

This research can give us something that we can learn in life. If we love someone we must be able to make all of the triangular components happen to someone. If we lose one of them, the relationship will not go as smooth as we want. The relationship that is performed by Kateryn ends up being despair because the absence of passion toward her husband. In the other hand, she cannot be with Thomas Seymour because the absence of decision/commitment.

Hence if we want to have a good relationship with someone we love, make sure we have intimacy, passion and decision/commitment with that person. As suggestion, by understanding the characterization and psychology that exist in this term paper easily the readers can see the theme of this research. They also can get a lesson and moral values from this term paper. This term paper reminds us that triangular love theory is a foundation that someone must have to build a good relationship with someone. Beside that for the student of English Department especially those who are interested in this novel, this research is analyzed through of new perspective, psychoanalysis or other concepts.
