

CHAPTER 5

CONCLUSION

The conclusions are presented in accordance with the result of the data analysis in the previous chapter. The intrinsic approach which consists of characterization, plot, and setting, elaborate with analysis through intrinsic and extrinsic approach by using hatred emotion concept by Albertine Minderop.

First, based on the result of the analysis in the previous chapter, I can conclude showing method is the method can be used to analyze the characterization of the main characters in Gone Girl (2014) movie script. It can be proven in Nick Dunne and Amy Dunne character that they have signs of hatred, anger, envy and jealousy. That characterization will prove the hatred emotion in the character Nick Dunne and Amy Dunne from this movie.

Second, plot and setting are used to analyze Gone Girl (2014) movie script, it has been proven by the elements contained in the plot; exposition, complication, crisis, falling action and resolution. The exposition begins when Nick talking with Margo about marriage relationship between Nick and Amy. Nick said that their 5th relationship was furious. The complication comes when Amy disappeared. The crisis comes when Amy finds out that Nick has an affair. The falling action comes when Amy is beaten and robbed by her neighbor. Amy meets with Desi Collings. The resolution comes when Nick and Amy are back together but through Amy's manipulation. They're about to go on TV together, but then Amy shows Nick a positive pregnancy test. Nick decides to stay with Amy to help raise the child.

Third, after analyzing the intrinsic and extrinsic elements in the Gone Girl (2014) movie script, I found that the theme in this movie script is hatred.

The moral of this movie script is whatever we do to humans can have an impact on those around us too, in marriage, honesty and communication should be the main thing. Otherwise it will result in resentment between each other.

According to this research, it is potential for the next research to analyze Gone Girl (2014) movie script through other approaches and concept. This research can introduce the student of English Language and Culture Department about hatred through the hatred emotion concept in literature work. This research also can be used as a comparison to write a better analysis.
