CONCLUSION

In this thesis, an analysis of the Movie "the tomorrow war" uses the theory of defense mechanism and the psychology of literature. Through a qualitative approach, this study aims to understand how the characters in the film adapt to the difficult environment and how the hierarchy of human needs is reflected in the behavior and social interaction in this movie. In an analysis of the film with defense mechanism theory, it was found that the main characters, like Dan Forester, face the challenge of facing an alien attack that threatens the Earth. They fight to survive and protect their loved ones. The characters face continuous attacks so that they can survive the stout of those who fall but the fighting spirit of and Dan Forester never wavered in the slightest. Furthermore, in the analysis of the depiction of the defense mechanism, it was found that the film "the tomorrow war" successfully depicts physical, security, social, reward, and self-actualization needs in the context of such survival and protecting institutions. The characters struggle to satisfy these needs, and this defense mechanism influences the social dynamics within the institution.

Then I summed up and extrinsic approach defense mechanism used to analyze the tomorrow war movie scripts. To support this, I use the theory social analytics by Sigmund Freud as a supporting theory of the journal. I use the defense mechanism by Sigmund Freud to understand the causes of defense mechanism in character. This statement tells us that Dan Forester is fighting to save his family from an alien attack he is willing to do anything to keep his family safe. In addition, tomorrow war unites us a struggle Dan Forester protects us from alien attacks. It is easier to remain mute and indifferent in a situation similar to one on film, especially if you hold a position of authority. But everyone can become such a person by taking inspiration from the struggle of the main character for universal justice. Because doing little things to be fair are enough, you don't need to act in a big way. How to be fair. The analysis found that the movie "The Tomorrow War" presents a strong dialogue of individual defense mechanism in a difficult environment as well as the influence of the defense mechanism on behavior and social interaction.

The Film provides a social message that invites the audience to consider the importance of a father's role in order to protect his family. This Analysis also makes a social message to be conveyed through this film, namely criticism of social inequality, unfair economic systems, and the challenges of defense mechanisms in harsh environments. The Film "The Tomorrow War" invites viewers to reflect on social injustice, humanitarian solidarity, and the importance of paying attention to the struggle of a father in saving his family. In concluding this, it is important to realize that the Film "The Tomorrow War" is a work of art that is open to different interpretations. The conclusions resulting from this study are subjective and debatable. Nevertheless, through the analysis and interpretation of the data using the theory of defense mechanism this study provides a deeper understanding of this film and the social messages it seeks to convey through its portrayal of the defense mechanism and the challenges of defense mechanism in a difficult environment.

This study provides a broader insight into the use of adaptation theory and the defense mechanism in analyzing the movie "The Tomorrow War" and conveying the social messages contained in it. For the extrinsic approach, I use defense mechanism by Sigmund Freud. He stated, the adjustment mechanism used by humans throughout their lives. The process of adaptation is a human response to continuing his life in the present and the present and the future as a continuation of the continuation of his life in the past, and as a result of human interaction with the environment. In adapting, humans use culture as a guide. According to Sigmund Freud, the defense mechanism process Each person performs a defense mechanism differently depending on the characteristics that tend to be strong in a person., based on social values.

The closest and most obvious environment for Man is physio-organic nature.
