

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION

After analyzing this novel I conclude that the intrinsic approach can be used to analyze this Margaret Yorke's novel Almost the Truth. I apply showing and telling method to know the characterization of some characters. The characters that I analyze are Hannah and Derek as her father. Then by using the concept of setting, especially the five function of setting, later on I know the setting of this novel. Also by using the concept of plot it can be known the plot of this novel from exposition until resolution.

Then I also conclude that the extrinsic approach can be used to analyze this novel. I use concept of trauma to explain about Hannah's trauma and I use the concept of frigidity to describe frigidity of Hannah, which is caused by the traumatic experience. The characterization, setting, and plot of this novel support the concepts of trauma and frigidity. The result of intrinsic approach I elaborate with extrinsic approach. It proves that the theme of this novel is trauma leads into frigidity.

It is explained that trauma of Hannah causes frigidity. The girl who has traumatic experience is caused of the rape. It makes manner, emotional and psychology of Hannah change. The thing that getting worse is she hates her father who does not try to help her as the one of the rubber rapes her. She is disappointed with it until she cannot forgive her father. When the victim of sexual abuse feels her life changing, Hannah also feels it. She becomes a frigid woman against man who loving and caring her, it is caused of traumatic experience. Inability to achieve orgasm, feeling ashamed, until try to commit a suicidal attempt, those are Hannah feel it too. It may also happen in the real life. It just everyone has different way to accept that. Even though Hannah moves to other country, she admits that she has not to do a sexual relationship and just waiting the time.

The moral teaching from this research is as parents we should take of care the children well, especially daughters. Although it must risk our lives soul, may the children will think if their parent is a hero who protect them anywhere, whenever, anytime or with anyone they are. As children especially daughter, never regret with what happen in your life. Though, the worse thing happens to life. Forgiving it will better to take of care the relationship in family. Controlling emotion and feeling is better than go away and fix it with the good thing which you think if it is good, not only to self but also to others. Whereas, Hannah just waiting time to back to normal until she can accept a man if around her or want to do sexual relationship, I think it is fair. Woman cannot accept the real if she gets rape quickly. Then from Hannah, we get tough if you are in horrible condition or the bad thing switch your life soon, just doing something positive to make your life productive. As Hannah does who chose in Bird Conservation.

According this research, this novel has potential to analyze through another approaches or concepts. This research can use as comparison to write better analysis. The potential concept is for this novel Almost the Truth which can be analyzed with new perspective which can use concept guilty feeling and revenge.
